

Crime Statistics

And Community Information

---

Neighborhood Crime Summaries

The following sources provide various types of crime data. The amount of details provided and how far back information is available varies by source.

City of Austin

The Austin Police Department's online resource includes the APD Crime Viewer, an interactive mapping program with multiple search options that works best on Microsoft® browsers, such as Internet Explorer. There is also a Traffic Viewer map with incident listings updated every few minutes.

austintexas.gov/departments/crime-information

City Protect®

CityProtect maps crime data from participating public safety agencies with crime details varying based on the provider. Sex offender data is pulled from a national feed, updated weekly, and available for all cities. In Central Texas, participating agencies include Austin and Georgetown police departments.

cityprotect.com

SpotCrime®

SpotCrime collects data from police departments, news reports and user-generated content, to plot their crime map. They also provide crime alerts, which can be received on a variety of social media platforms. Information for all cities across the nation is available.

spotcrime.com

Local Police Stations and Phone Numbers

RoadPolice

When you travel, it's important to know where to go or whom to call if you need police help. This website contains a database of over 20,000 police departments nationwide.

This information is provided for non-emergency use. If you have a police emergency call 911.

road-police.com

Community Information

Central Texas Homebuyer Information – The Relocation Guides

Available for Travis, Williamson, and Hays Counties.

stewart.com/austin/relocation-guide