Stewart and CertifID Announce Integration with Stewart's AIM+® Title and Escrow Production System

HOUSTON (March 29, 2021) – Stewart Information Services Corporation (NYSE:STC) announced today a new integration for AIM+ that helps protect users from wire fraud. The integration of CertifID into the AIM+ title and escrow production system brings wire security and flexibility to the application.

"As we commit to protecting our customers and agents from wire fraud, integrations like this help build upon the partnership, and expertise CertifID has in securely connecting and sending wire instructions from AIM+," said Tara Smith, Group President, Stewart Agency Services. "Now any AIM+ user has the ability to save time and protect each wire transfer up to $1 million through a seamless experience in AIM+."

Last November, Stewart and CertifID announced a partnership to provide Stewart customers peace-of-mind with increased prevention and protection for real estate money transfers.

"The FBI recently reported a 69% increase in cyber-crime complaints last year, and with wire fraud in real estate transactions continuing to grow, this integration makes it easier and safer for agents to safeguard their transfers," said Tom Cronkright, CEO and co-founder of CertifID. "Through our partnership, Stewart agents can enjoy preferred pricing as we work closely with Stewart to provide convenient and efficient operational improvements to our systems and integrations, while protecting their business and consumers."

AIM+ offers agents a comprehensive title & escrow system and features integrations with services such as Simplifile, UPS, FedEx, and DocuSign®, ensuring an ease-of-use experience for the customer all in one system.
